ABOUT THE ARTIST

He started taking violin lessons at a young age from his mother. During his childhood he also took piano, trumpet and guitar lessons, and one semester of violin under Ruth Urdiales.

At age 14 he started to take lessons from Iliana Stefanova, principal second violin of the Yucatan State Symphony Orchestra, and attended the Jose Jacinto Cuevas Music School in Merida, Mexico. There he was the concertmaster of the strings orchestra, and principal second violin of the state university's youth Camerata.

He studied one year of music at Montemorelos University in Mexico, taking violin lessons from Nataliya Semanivska.

In 2013 he was accepted to the Andrews University music program, and since then he is pursuing a Bachelor of Music in Music Performance, studying violin under Carla Trynchuk. While at Andrews University, he began taking viola lessons under Dr. Claudio Gonzalez

In the Spring of 2016, she was a winner of the "Young Artist Competition" at Andrews University, performing Khachaturian's Violin Concerto with the Andrews University Symphony Orchestra. He has also participated in masterclasses with Lyndon Taylor, Olga Dubossarskaya Kaler, Barry Ross, among others.
