FOREWORD

This volume is designed as the first in a series of volumes¹ by Marcel Sigrist that together will constitute the bulk of Andrews University's published cuneiform tablet collection.

Now housed in the Institute of Archaeology's Horn Archaeological Museum, the collection has an interesting history, only part of which is known. For sixty years these tablets belonged to the Hartford Seminary Foundation in Hartford, Connecticut. They were acquired for the Seminary in 1913 by Lewis B. Paton, Professor of Old Testament Exegesis and Criticism. That year apparently Hartford joined with Harvard, Yale, and J. P. Morgan Library to buy up all the cuneiform tablets on the London antiquities market.² These tablets were divided up among the four institutions, Hartford receiving 3200 of them.

At the time, Paton reported the acquisition as follows:

Through the generosity of Prof. Jacobus and the appropriation of some money from the interest on the Research Fund and by the Library, the sum of 1300 dollars was put at my disposal. With this I have been able to secure 3200 Babylonian tablets dating all the way from the Dynasty of Ur, about 2500 B.C., down to the time of the Seleucid Dynasty, about 200 B.C. The tablets are most of them in fine condition and are very legible. The majority of them are baked. We have now an adequate apparatus for the study of the Babylonian inscriptions for any student who may come to Hartford Seminary, and have a collection that will grow more and more valuable as the years advance. At its last meeting the Board of Trustees appropriated the sum of 300 dollars to be used in providing boxes and cases for these tablets. These I have purchased and have arranged the tablets in them. Each tablet is placed on cotton in a glass covered box and these boxes are disposed in large flat drawers. By this method the tablets are preserved from the disintegration caused by moisture and are rendered easily accessible. I have already begun a rough classification of the records into their respec-

¹This first volume as well as its successor which is now in press contain only Ur III texts without seals. Volume III will deal with the sealed Ur III tablets. The sealed and unsealed Old Babylonian texts will appear in Volumes IV and V.

²Cf. notice in Tower Topics, January, 1952. Professor Erle Leichty of the University of Pennsylvania suggested to me that our collection might have been among several that were sold to various institutions by Professor Albert T. Clay of Yale when he was in the process of building up their collection by picking out the most interesting texts and selling the rest to get capital for more. Ms. Ulla Kasten of the Yale Babylonian Collection has kindly checked their files but was unable to find any documentation relating to the Hartford Collection.

tive historical periods and intend to carry out this classification so that eventually all the documents of a period will be brought together.³

Unfortunately that task was never completed. A generation went by. On January 15, 1951, Professor Ferris J. Stephens, curator of the Yale Babylonian Collection, made a preliminary survey of Hartford's holdings and then reported to the Seminary:

One statement of Prof. Paton's report reveals the wisdom of Prof. Paton. I refer to his remark that your collection "will grow more and more valuable as the years advance." This is true in relation to the inherent value of the records themselves. Scholars are coming to recognize that every cuneiform tablet is a unique piece of source material for the reconstruction of one of the world's earliest and most important centers of culture.... In another sense your collection is an important one. It is safe to say that outside of Yale and Harvard, it is the largest collection in New England. In fact, in point of size, it is one of the half dozen major collections in the United States. It seems that a definite program should be set up as soon as possible for putting this collection in order. This will occupy a specialist's attention for several months—at least two years....⁴

Two weeks later Professors Henry Allen Gleason, Moses Bailey, and Ford Lewis Battles approached Hartford Seminary President Stafford on funding a research program to study and publish the tablets. Vaughn E. Crawford was available and they hoped to employ him. But that plan, too, did not come to fruition—though four years later, in the spring of 1955, Crawford did do some preliminary study of the collection which by that time had dwindled to 2853 tablets divided by Crawford according to the following designations: Ur III, 1971; old Babylonian, 604; Neo Babylonian, 209; School Texts, 69.⁵ Eventually Crawford made beautiful hand copies of some fifty of the most interesting texts; still unpublished these will be included in our series in due course.

Only 20 of the tablets were ever published while the collection was in Hartford. Eighteen of these were among 51 tablets studied by Edmond Sollberger of the British Museum's Department of Western Asiatic Antiquities. In his own words he tells how this came to be:

It was in the spring of 1955. If I remember correctly, that I went to Hartford with Crawford to examine the tablets. We made a selection of a good number which interested us more, and took them to Yale with Professor Moses Bailey's permission. We had them baked at Yale, and I copied a certain number which are published in JCS 10 and in TCS 1. These are numbered HTS 143-146 and HTS 102-115 respectively. I also made transliterations of a number of other tablets, namely, HTS 55-59, 101 and 116-142.⁶

That remained the situation until the winter of 1972-73 when Robert M. Johnston, later to become a professor at Andrews University but then a doctoral student at Hartford, learned that in the process of retrenchment then taking place at the Seminary, Hartford was considering disposing in some way of the tablet collection. At the suggestion of Dr. Karen Shea, a loyal supporter of the Andrews University Archaeological Museum, Johnston notified Professor Siegfried H. Horn, then Dean of Andrews University's Theological Seminary and Curator of its Archaeological Museum. Eventually, on May 18, 1973, an agreement was reached between the Hartford Seminary Foundation (represented by its Museum Curator, John E. Worrell) and Andrews University (represented by Horn) for the former to loan the latter the collection for a five-year period to prepare it for publication. The agreement made provisions, however, for an extension of the loan for another five years. It also gave Andrews University the first option to buy the tablets if agreed to by both parties.

In June of 1973, 2715 tablets of the original 3200 arrived at Andrews. They had been carefully packed by the Johnston family (Robert, Madeline, daughters Beth and Margaret, and son Robert) with the help of Siegfried Horn and Richard Kuns, then Assistant Curator at the Hartford Seminary Museum. One hundred more were found at Yale and transferred to Andrews through the cooperation of Professor William W. Hallo. A few more turned up in the hands of individuals who had had access to the collection. Immediately, Eugenia Nitowski, Assistant Curator of Andrews University's Archaeological Museum, set to work registering the collection tablet by tablet, cleaning, repairing (in many cases soaking to remove salts, baking, and consolidating) and photographing. Horn invited interested scholars to work on them.

Within the first four years of their coming to Andrews nearly half of the tablets had been studied by John Brinkman (University of Chicago, 22 Neo Babylonian texts), Mark E. Cohen (Yale University, 17 Old Babylonian texts), Carney E. S. Gavin (Harvard Semitic Museum, 285 tablets with cylinder seal impressions), Ignace Gelb (University of Chicago, 14 Old Babylonian texts), Lawrence T. Geraty (Andrews University, 2 tablets with Aramaic endorsements), Cord Kuhne (University of Marburg, 11 Old Babylonian texts), Marcel Sigrist (Ecole Biblique, Jerusalem, 702 Sumerian texts), and David Weisberg (Hebrew Union College, 24 Neo Babylonian texts).⁷ Later the following scholars from the University of Chicago also studied some of the tablets: Miguel Civil, Piotr Michalowski, Piotr Steinkeller, and Robert M. Whiting. It was primarily this demonstration of serious intent on the part of Andrews to get the collection published that persuaded Hartford's Board of Trustees in 1977 to sell the entire collection to Andrews. The negotiations were carried out between Dean Siegfried Horn and President Joseph G. Smoot at Andrews and Acting President Harvey K. McArthur at Hartford. The latter wisely sought the counsel of several specialists as to the advisability of housing the collection permanently at Andrews. Among those who unselfishly recommended it were Doctors Crawford, Hallo, Leichty, and Sollberger—all already mentioned.

Though the publication process has been slower than originally anticipated, the following texts have so far been published (including those by Sollberger):

It is obvious then that this present volume of 974 texts by Marcel Sigrist is the most extensive and ambitious publication so far. Andrews University and indeed the scholarly community at large are indebted to him for his diligent persistence over many years which has made this book possible. I wish to thank also Siegfried Horn, Eugenia Nitowski, and James Brower for their assistance in the project.

Our hope echoes that of Ferris J. Stephens articulated more than thirty years ago: may this source material find its rightful place in the reconstruction of one of the world's earliest and most important centers of culture.

INTRODUCTION

The present volume contains 974 economic texts from the Drehem archive dating to the time of the third dynasty of Ur (2100-2000 BC).

Besides the Neo-Babylonian archives nothing can compare in quantity with the archives from the Ur III epoch, of which about 25,000 have been published. Most of the tablets come from the major centers of the empire, including Ur, Umma, Lagaš, Drehem, and Nippur.

Most of the tablets published in this book come from the center of Drehem. Drehem was a large government-operated livestock complex established by Šulgi in his 39th year. It was responsible for providing the temples of Nippur with offerings.

The administrative function of the center can be described as follows. The central office received animals either from private donations, or from taxes or booty from the local inhabitants. The administrative term used for this operation was mu-túm (delivery). For many years this task was undertaken by Abbašagga, followed by Lugalamarku. Sometimes the animals reported in the records of Drehem were used as offerings to the gods. The administrative term used for this operation was ba-zi (withdrawn). But most of the animals were transferred according to their category (šu-lá-a, šu-gíd) to various services (l-dab₅), which would make them available according to needs (kitchens, offerings, individuals). The Drehem archive provides few tablets on the origin of these animals. This is especially true for the flocks of sheep which constitute the major contribution of animals for Drehem. This applies as well to the animals disbursed by one of the offices; often the destination is not given.

Aside from this lack of information, many recent publications inform the interested reader on questions of chronology, onomasticon, and religion during the Ur III epoch.

The tablets collected in this book do not contain seals. To do justice to the enormous and rich collection of seals from the Ur III epoch, another volume with only sealed tablets will supplement this volume. All tablets in this volume with an impression will be reprinted in the next volume.

In order to facilitate the usage of this volume it was decided to add indexes on personal names, names of deities, toponyms, and temples names. A catalogue enables one to locate quickly the numerical operations recorded on the tablets. A word index may help the lexicographic researchers.

I would like to thank Dr. Lawrence Geraty for giving me the permission to work at the Horn Archaeological Museum at Andrews University, and Dr. Eugenia Nitowski and Mr. Gary Witz of the staff for their constant help. A special thanks goes to James Brower for editing the manuscript on computer. But all this work would not have been possible were it not for the support of Father Cletus Rose of the St. Joseph (Michigan) parish and Mr. Philippe Guillemin of the French Foreign Ministry whose help made possible my many trips to the United States.
