

Jamie Grace in Concert

Enjoy her music at the Howard Performing Arts Center

Campus News | Posted on January 18, 2018

Jamie Grace is an American contemporary Christian musician, singer, rapper and songwriter from Atlanta, Georgia (Photo by Good Eye Management)

By: Brandon Shin, IMC student writer

On Sunday, Jan. 28, at 7 p.m., Jamie Grace will be in concert at the Howard Performing Arts Center on the campus of Andrews University.

Jamie Grace Harper, an American contemporary Christian musician, singer, rapper and songwriter from Atlanta, Georgia, grew up singing and playing instruments in both church and at home with her older sister, Morgan Harper. In 2010, she was discovered by TobyMac and signed to his record label Gotee Records under which she produced two albums. At just 25 years old, now independent artist Jamie Grace has four #1 radio singles, many nominations as a singer/songwriter, millions of views on her weekly YouTube videos and a "crazy but awesome" (as Jamie Grace explains it) tour schedule. Said to have a somewhat unusual style, Jamie Grace combines elements of hip hop, folk and pop into one distinct sound. This year, she released her latest hit single, "The Happy Song."

Regular reserved seating for this performance is $18 and students (limit of two per ID) $15. For tickets, additional information or a full season schedule of events, visit howard.andrews.edu or call the Howard Box Office at 269-471-3560.

Contact:

PR

pr@andrews.edu