

Andrews University Presents "Septura" in Concert

Enjoy the musical talent of London's leading brass players

Agenda | Posted on January 25, 2018

Septura redefines brass chamber music through the sound of the brass septet (Photo by Septura Brass Septet)

By: Brandon Shin, IMC student writer

On Sunday, Feb. 4, 2018, at 7 p.m., Andrews University will host Septura in concert at the Howard Performing Arts Center. Septura brings together London's leading players to redefine brass chamber music through the uniquely expressive sound of the brass septet. In music for voice and piano, Septura explores a transatlantic relationship between Maurice Ravel and George Gershwin who, despite their vastly contrasting musical worlds of French impressionism and American jazz, developed a deep mutual respect for each other.

Septura will open the concert with Ravel's "Mother Goose," charting a course from Debussy's "Preludes" and moving on to Gershwin's "Songbook." They will perform Gershwin's "Three Piano Preludes" and close with "An American in Paris," especially arranged for brass and solo car horns.

Reserve your tickets now at howard.andrews.edu. Regular reserved seating for this performance is $15, seniors (65+) $5, students (limit of two per ID) $5 and Andrews University staff $12. For additional information regarding this event or any events occurring at the Howard this year, call 269-471-3560. A full season schedule of events is available at howard.andrews.edu.

Contact:

PR

pr@andrews.edu