

Reaching Millennial Generations Conference

April 12-14, 2018

Seventh-Day Adventist Theological Seminary Dean's Office

Thu, April 12, 2018 @ 04:00 pm - 09:00 pm

Fri, April 13, 2018 @ 08:30 am - 09:00 pm

Sat, April 14, 2018 @ 09:30 am - 05:30 pm

Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary

On April 12–14, the Office of Adventist Mission and the Global Mission Center for Secular and Postmodern Studies (CSPS) will host the Reaching Millennial Generations conference at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary. The keynote speaker for the conference is author and pastor James Emery White of the Mecklenburg Community Church (Meck) in Charlotte, North Carolina. Under White’s leadership, Meck grew from a single family to more than 11,000 attendees on four campuses, the majority of whom were previously unchurched individuals.

The conference will also feature 16 additional presenters, including educators, administrators, church planters, pastors, evangelists and researchers, all applying their expertise to a pressing problem: how to effectively reach the expanding field of secular, millennial generations with the gospel message. Attendees will be equipped and empowered to be the body of Christ among new generations in a new millennium.

Conference registration is free for Andrews University students until April 10 and is $50 per person for non-AU students. To register and learn more, visit millennialglobalmission.org.

Sponsors: Office of Global Mission Center for Secular and Postmodern Studies; Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary

Related Website(s): <http://millennialglobalmission.org>