Greg Constantine
Emeritus Research Professor and Artist in Residence

My “discovery” of a particular red rock formation 15 miles from Cody Wyoming has inspired me to investigate the theme of geological stratification.

Thirty five paintings of the mountain I now refer to as “Mont St Gregoire” are the result of this exploration. Included within this series are works pictured here that incorporate the mountain’s silhouetted shape in order to feature the variation of treatments of the sky above it.