Possible Corrective Actions

1. Establish the frequency of preparation and the format of cash flow forecasts, reports, and analyses, including who is responsible for preparing these documents and to whom they will be disseminated.
2. Decide the amount of the optimum balance of cash needed for operating the school.
3. Identify what actions will be taken, and by whom, to address short- and long-term negative cash flow situations.

Possible Corrective Actions

4. Establish all billing and collection procedures. Can a higher percentage of the Accounts Receivable be collected each month? Is there is a discount policy in place to provide an incentive for parents and guardians to pay sooner, or perhaps pay the year-in-full upon initial registration? What other actions can be taken to collect accounts receivable, especially the past due accounts receivable?

Possible Corrective Actions

5. Is there a plan in place whereby months with excess cash-on-hand (e.g., January) can be immediately invested so that it provides some interest return?
6. Can an arrangement be made with vendors to lengthen out the payment policies on the invoices?

Possible Corrective Actions

7. Are there options for the school to host special events, related business activities, unrelated business activities, fund-raising activities in order to increase cash receipts? If so, guidelines for processing and managing income from these events need to be established.

Monitoring and Analysis

Effective cash flow management requires:

Vigilance: being ever mindful of current and developing situations that might require corrective action.

Flexibility: the ability to modify plans accordingly.

3 Months Forecasted vs. Actual Cash Flow

	Forecasted	Actual	Variance & (%)
Cash Inflows:
Tuition Receipts	$90,000	$80,000	($10,000) (11%)
Collections of A/R	60,000	55,000	(5,000) (8%)
Donations	15,000	20,000	5,000 33%
Subsidy	75,000	75,000	-0-
Total Cash Inflows	240,000	230,000	(10,000) (4%)
Cash Outflows:

Net Cash Flow	(25,000)	(45,000)	(20,000)

Analysis of Variances Report

	Forecasted	Actual	Variance	Explanation
Cash Inflows
Tuition	90,000	80,000	(10,000)	Lower Enrollment than expected
Collection A/R	60,000	55,000	(5,000)	Illness of Collection Director
Donations	15,000	20,000	5,000	Planned donation sent earlier
Cash Outflows
Salary & Wages	135,000	140,000	5,000	Medical costs for Collection Director
Materials & Supplies	75,000	80,000	5,000	Higher costs but contracts written at the beginning of the semester
Net Cash Flow	(25,000)	(45,000)	(20,000)

Addressing the Negative Cash Flow

1. Delay nonessential purchases.
2. Request extension on payments to vendors or establish installment plans with vendors to pay for essential purchases.
3. Postpone hiring new personnel or awarding salary increases to staff.
4. Request cash advances from funding sources.

Addressing the Negative Cash Flow

5. Plan a quickly instituted fundraising drive.
6. Seek short-term loans from banks or other financial institutions.
7. Use available lines of credit.
8. Engage in careful cost cutting.
9. Review Internal Control procedures over cash and consider the possibility of embezzlement or fraud.

Basic Internal Controls over Cash

1. Separation of duties.
2. Performing surprise audits.
3. Leaving audit trails with excellent documentation.
4. Limiting access to accounting records and end-of-year entries.
5. Checking the background of new employees.
6. Mandating long vacations.

3. Leaving audit trails with excellent documentation.
4. Limiting access to accounting records and end-of-year entries.
5. Checking the background of new employees.
6. Mandating long vacations.

Questions to Ask

1. Why are the receivables so high?
2. Are there outstanding loans to employees?
3. Avoid the temptation to withhold sending offerings up to the Division.
