The steady growth of the Seventh-day Adventist Church has created a demand for qualified professionals who can support its worldwide mission with their talents and education. In response to this need, the General Conference has launched the Adventist Professionals' Network (APN) — an electronic global registry of Adventists who hold the minimum of a master's degree or its equivalent (5 years of post-secondary studies) in any field. APN assists participating institutions and agencies in locating consultants with expertise, volunteers for short mission assignments, and candidates for positions in teaching, administration, and research.

Enter your professional information directly in the APN web site:
