2012

The Impact of Family, Community, and Resilience on African-American Young Adults Who Had Parents Incarcerated During Childhood [Dissertation Notice]

M. D. Ming

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.andrews.edu/jacl

Part of the Leadership Studies Commons

Recommended Citation

Available at: https://digitalcommons.andrews.edu/jacl/vol6/iss2/18 ship style and listening practices of International Mission Board (IMB) overseas team leaders. The Multifactor Leadership Questionnaire (MLQ) was used to measure transformational, transactional, and passive/avoidant leadership style and the Listening Practices Feedback Report-360 (LPFR) assessed listening practices of attention, empathy, memory, open mind, respect, and response. A correlational analysis using Pearson $r$ was conducted between leadership styles and listening practices. Further analysis was conducted to determine which leadership style was most significantly correlated with each of the six listening practice subscales.

The findings indicated that transformational leadership had a statistically significant and moderately positive correlation with the total LPFR score and with the other five listening practices subscales. Transactional leaders also had a moderately positive correlation with total LPFR score and significant correlations on empathy, memory, and response subscales. Passive/avoidant leadership style had a significantly moderate negative correlation with LPFR and with empathy, memory, respect, and response subscales. This study shows that transformational and transactional leadership styles have a statistically significant and moderately positive relationship with listening dimension scores as measured by the LPFR and supports transformational leadership theory.

This dissertation sought to determine the impact of pastoral and staff leadership development on the southern African-American church in areas of church growth (worship attendance, Bible study attendance, and church membership census), community development (ministries that reach into the community); and economic growth (income from tithes...